ADVICE to FARMERS.

THE causes of the spewing out of wheat, are, 1. Too much moisture in the soil. 2. Frost.—The remedies are, to avoid sowing either wet, sour, or springy soils; and to ditch, trench, or water-furrow sufficiently those fields, he suspects in either of these particulars. Manuring well, is also an important article. But when the evil has taken place, let him not neglect to roll his wheat as early in the spring as convenient, after his fields are dry enough to admit of it: this, and a good top dressing of ripe manure, will revive and strengthen the roots which would otherwise perish.

The destruction of apples by the cankerworm is a serious calamity. It has been remarked, that this species of worm never touch apple trees that stand on clay. A gravelly soil is not friendly to these worms; but if the soil is a soft light earth, the trees thereon are often considerably injured.—These facts suggest the propriety of choosing such parts of farms for orchards as do not admit the worm; for hard clay and cold moist earth do not furnish this animal with agreeable lodgings.—But where a choice of soils cannot be had, then plowing or digging up the earth under the trees, just before winter, and exposing the worm to the action of the rain or frost, may perhaps totally destroy it, or so lessen the number as to save the fruit of the succeeding year.

The virtue of plaster of Paris in procuring large crops of hay is well known. An experiment has lately been tried of mixing it with seed-oats, and to great advantage; but it is not so generally understood, that by mixing it with seed-wheat, very abundant crops may be produced. This, however, is a well ascertained fact, and the following is the mode of preparing it:—to six bushels of wheat, take one bushel of finely powdered plaster of Paris; soak the wheat over night in water; take it out of the water, and mix it thoroughly with the plaster of Paris; it is then to be sown in the usual way.

He that by the plough would thrive,
Himself must either hold or drive.

In the township of Oneida, at the head of the Susquehanna, in the spring of 1793, 160,000 lb. of good maple sugar was made, which valued at 9d per pound, amounts to $15,000 dollars.

The Anatomy of Man's Body as governed by the Twelve Constellations.

1. ♀ Aries. The Head and Face.

2. ♂ Taurus. Neck.

4. ♂ Cancer. Breast.

6. ♀ Virgo. Bowels.

8. ♂ Scorpio. Secrets.

10. ♂ Capricorn. Knees.

3. ♊ Gemini. Arms.

5. ♈ Leo. Heart.

7. ♉ Libra. Reins.

9. ♋ Sagittarius. Thighs.

11. ♂ Aquarius. Legs

※ 12 Pisces. Feet.

Explanation. If you want to know what sign you are under, first look for the day of the month in the almanac, and opposite to that in the sixth column, you have the sign that the moon is in; then finding the sign here, it shews the part of the body it is supposed to govern.

When a MAN'S NAME IS UP he may LIE ABED TILL NOON.

OUR good country folks, when they mean to say a man's fame is spread abroad, or his reputation extensively established, say "his name is up," or "he has got his name up." How blessed is the man who has got his name up.

I once knew a shopkeeper who had got his name up as a cheap trader, and did indeed sell cheap—wondrous cheap—even below first cost. He began to trade with little capital—sold goods for less than he gave—and yet grew rich. How can this be? The Prompter thinks it is very easy. That article which every body wants and knows the value of, sell very low; even lower than the first cost—get your name up—draw all the world to your shop—and put double profit on other goods. It is very easy and very common, the greatest blockhead can do this and make a fortune.

So when a writer has got his name up he may retail all manner of nonsense, and it will find a ready market in public opinion. A good essay appears in the newspaper—who wrote it? Dr. Franklin, it is said, wrote it. Well it is like him—it is a masterly production. Some time after, the real author appears to be a young man, who, as the poet says, is "unknown to fame;" and, as I say, whose "name is not up"—Impossible! he cannot be the author. Who ever heard of him before! I am sure Dr. Franklin or gov. Livingston helped him.—In fact his name is not up.

I was once travelling through a neighbouring state, and, enquiring for the best inns on the road, was directed to a noted one, whose owner had got his name up for the best entertainment.—He had a large house well partitioned into small rooms for single lodgers. His table was excellent, but the cookery at his table was wretched—mean indeed—I could eat nothing. But every traveller would seek for the noted inn.—In fact the man had got his name up, and he might lie abed till noon.

A young lady gets her name up for a beauty or a fortune—all the world are sighing and dying for her. Wit, sense, accomplishments, all distinguish her—beaus hang round her, like flies about a cask of sugar—suddenly she has a fit of sickness—the roses on her cheek decay—it is discovered she has no fortune—her admirers draw off—she is a clever girl, but not so clever as I thought her.

CHANGE OF THE HALF JOE.

A Butcher who travelled through New-Jersey, purchasing cattle, usually put up at a certain tavern, in —— county. This tavern was chiefly attended by a handsome young woman ; whom the butcher frequently solicited to gratify his amorous desires, but always in vain. At length he shewed her a half joe, which he promised her, if she would sleep with him one night. The shining prize overcame her virtue, and she consented. In the morning, on settling his reckoning, he asked the landlord for the change of the half joe he gave the maid the preceding evening. The landlord said he heard nothing of it, and called the maid ; she being ashamed to tell the truth gave the half joe back to the butcher.—About a year afterwards the butcher travelling the same part of the country, again put up at the same inn, and was soon surprised to see himself surrounded by a crowd of constables and overseers of the poor, who told him that he was arrested to give security for the support of a child laid to his charge by the maid of the house, and who was likely to become a burden on the township. The butcher was obliged to comply with their demands, which amounted to upwards of forty pounds. And to compleat his mortification, after the affair was settled the young woman herself appeared before him, and archly said, “ I hope, sir, you have now got the change of your half joe.”

Enquiry on Woman, by Ledyard, the celebrated Traveller.

I have always remarked, that women in all countries are civil, obliging, tender, and humane ; that they are gay and cheerful, timorous, and modest ; and that they do not hesitate, like men, to perform a generous action. To a woman, either civilized or savage, I never addressed myself in the language of decorum and friendship, without receiving a decent and friendly answer—with men it has been otherwise.

In wandering over the barren plains of inhospitable Denmark, through honest Sweden and frozen Lapland, rude and churlish Finland, unprincipled Russia, and the wide-spreading regions of the wandering Tartar—if hungry, dry, cold, wet, or sick, the women have ever been friendly to me, and uniformly so ; and to add to this virtue, (so worthy the appellation of benevolence), these actions have been performed in so kind a manner, that if I was dry I drank the sweetest draught—and if hungry, I eat the coarsest morsel with a double relish.

A N E C D O T E S.

IN a neighbouring state, representation was made to the wardens and deacons of a certain church, that a family of the name of Bull, belonging to their congregation, was in distress. Two of the deacons were deputed to visit the family, and afford them relief. When they came to the house they found the family in a miserable state; among other things they saw two cows, that seemed to be half starved. They resolved in the first place to sell these, and apply the money to the relief of the family—and they made the following entry of their proceedings in the church-book—Sold two cows that were Bulls.

Some time ago, while a proprietor of coal-pits in Scotland, was instructing his daughter, a child of seven years old, in the doctrine of rewards and punishments, she was very inquisitive as to the nature of hell. Upon its being explained to be a gulph of fire, where all the wicked were to suffer for their transgressions,—she said, after musing a while, “ Dear papa, could not you get the Devil to take his coals from you.”

A family lately advertised for a wet nurse. Among various young women who offered themselves for the place, was an innocent girl, who appeared to be about sixteen years of age. Struck with her youth and simple appearance, the lady expressed the utmost astonishment that she should be qualified for a wet nurse’s place. “ Madam, said the girl, I never was a wet nurse, but I think that I could soon learn to be one.”

The celebrated Dr. P—, in the course of the twelve-month generally makes an elegant dinner for his brethren of the clergy; and in common none of the other learned professions, either medical or legal, are admitted to this select party. As no rule exists without an exception, the doctor upon a certain occasion invited a gentleman of the bar. He was the only one present. At dinner an apology was offered for the appearance of a character so foreign to the clerical. A would-be wit remarked, that the matter was excusable, “ for when the sons of God assembled, the devil came also.” True, replies the lawyer, and the same book relates, “ that a certain man fell among thieves.”

A certain person had a law-suit depending, which was on the point of being determined. His counsel not being in court, he went to enquire for him at his house. Pray, said he to the servant, is Mr. — at home? There are two brothers of that name, replied the servant, which do you want, sir? The counsellor. Sir, they are both counsellors. Well, he that's marked with the small-pox. They are both marked with it, sir. The crooked one, then. They are both crooked. I mean the married one. They are both married, sir. But he that has the remarkable pretty wife. Both their wives, sir, are remarkably handsome. Well, the cuckold then; now you must know which it is. To tell you the truth, sir, I am afraid they are both cuckolds.

Striking Instance of Sagacity in a Dog.

Let me here, says Dr. Beattie, mention a fact which was never before recorded, and which happened within a few miles of Aberdeen. As a gentleman was walking across the Dee when it was frozen, the ice gave way in the middle of the river, and down he sunk; but kept himself from being carried away in the current, by grasping his gun, which had fallen across the opening. A dog who attended him, after many fruitless attempts to rescue his master, ran to a neighbouring village, and took hold of the coat of the first person he met. The man was alarmed, and would have disengaged himself; but the dog regarded him with a look so kind and so significant, and endeavoured to pull him along with so gentle a violence, that he began to think that there might be something extraordinary in the case, and suffered himself to be conducted by the animal, who brought him to his master in time to save his life.

Man's life, like any weaver's shuttle flies,
Or like a tender flow'r it fades and dies;
Or like a race it ends without delay,
Or like a vapour vanishes away;
Or like a candle which each moment wastes,
Or like a vessel under sail it hastes;
Or like a post it gallops very fast,
Or like the shadow of a cloud 'tis past.
Our castle is but weak, and strong the foe,
Our breath is short, our death is certain too;

But as his coming is a secret still,
Let us be ready, come death when he will.

A favourite Song.

When I had scarcely told sixteen,
My flattering tell-tale glas,
Told me there seldom could be seen,
A blyther bonnier lass :
Full twenty lovers round me bow'd,
But high my head I carried ;
And with a scornful air I vow'd,
I never would be married.

Young Harry warmly urg'd his suit,
And talk'd of wealth in store ;
While Jemmy thought to strike me mute,
And told his conquests o'er.
Each youth a different art essay'd,
And still their arts I parried ;
Believe me, sirs, I laughing said,
I never will be married.

Then five revolving summers past,
While I the tyrant play'd,
Ah ! then I fear'd 'twould be at last
My fate to die a maid :
Of all the lovers in my train,
There was but one that tarried !
I thought 'twas time to change my straie,
And we this morn were married.

The Dying Negro.

O'er my toil wither'd limbs, sickly langours are shed,
And the dark mists of death on my eye-lids are spread ;
Before my last sufferings, how gladly I bend,
For the strong arm of death is the arm of a friend.

Against the hot breezes hard struggles my breast,
Slow, slow beats my heart, and hastens to rest ;
No longer shall anguish my faint bosom rend,
For the strong arm of death is the arm of a friend.

No more I shall sink in the deep-scorching air,
No more shall sharp hunger my weak body tear ;
No more on my limbs shall keen lashes descend,
For the strong arm of death is the arm of a friend.

Ye ruffians, who tore me from all I held dear,
Who mock'd at my wailing, and smil'd at my tear ;
Now, now shall I 'scape, every tortute shall end,
For the strong arm of death is the arm of a friend.

Cure for the Flux.

Take about three quarters of a ounce of the rind of the oldest cheese that can be got, scrape it very fine in a pint or less, of new milk, which let be thickened with the best superfine flour, to the consistence of what is generally termed mush, which let be the patients constant diet, till they find the flux beginning to stop, then work it off with a gentle purge ; should they leave off taking the medicine too soon, and find the disorder returning, have recourse to it again ; it will assuredly cure.

Another cure. Take the inner bark of a white oak saplin or tree, of which make tea, sweetened with the best double refined loaf sugar, which let be the patient's constant drink ; observing to work it off as in the first receipt.—A glass of good port wine now and then, is also beneficial : observing to keep the body warm, by wearing flannel next the skin.

Note. The above receipts were found very efficacious in the flux that raged in several parts of the country last summer.

For a Hooping-Cough.

Take dried colts-foot leaves a good handful, cut them small, and boil them in a pint of water, till half a pint is boiled away ; when it is almost cold, strain it through a cloth, squeezing the herb as dry as you can. Dissolve in the liquor an ounce of brown sugar candy, broken as small as you can. Give the child, one spoonful of it three or four times a-day, or oftener, if the fits of coughing come frequently, till well, which will be in two or three days ; but it will presently almost abate the fits of coughing. When sugar-candy cannot be had, honey or good brown sugar may be used.—This medicine is of excellent use in all sorts of coughs, in either old or young. Change of air is also beneficial.

TRUE COURAGE.

To struggle with misfortune's flood,

Whilst loud the tempest blows,

Bespakes a heart resolv'd and good,

Where many a virtue glows.

Thus, whilst by misery we are tried,

True worth we may employ ;

He who the storm has ne'er defied,

The calm can scarce enjoy.
